

English Literature Major and Minor

www.english.pitt.edu

Revised: 05/2016

Your love of reading and the infinite worlds that books contain might be the door to a future full of possibilities. English Literature majors work closely with faculty to develop versatile skills in critical thought and problem solving by exploring the literary past and present—from Harry Potter to Hamlet and from Sherlock Holmes to Katniss Everdeen. Prepare yourself for an increasingly globalized world of professional employment and cultural interaction through an immense variety of course offerings, which can also be complemented by electives in English composition, creative writing, and film. Choose from among five subject areas, or “concentrations,” and take charge of your preparation for post-graduate career paths while immersing yourself in and analyzing many of the greatest works ever written. The skills you master as an English Literature major will go with you to classrooms, boardrooms, or operating rooms.

Required courses for the English Literature major

The English literature major requires the completion of 36 credits distributed as follows. Students must choose one of the concentrations described as follows. Students who declare this major after April 1, 2016 must follow the requirements laid out in this document.

Introductory courses

ENGLIT 0505 How to Do Things with Literature 1
ENGLIT 0506 How to Do Things with Literature 2

Two period courses, to be selected from the list of approved courses for the student’s chosen concentration.

Six elective courses at the 0500 level or above.

- At least four of these courses should fall within the designated area of concentration selected by the student. Students may apply for special approval with the director of the Literature program to count an elective not previously listed in a given area of concentration.
- At least three of these courses must be from the 1000-level or above.
- Students may take up to two courses from other programs in the Department of English (Composition, Film, Writing) designated within their area of concentration. Students may apply for special approval with the director of the Literature program to count an additional elective from another English program.
- At least one of these courses should also fulfill a breadth of study requirement. Students should ask instructors or advisors whether a particular course or section fulfills this requirement.
- Independent study, directed study, teaching assistantships, and internships may count toward any concentration depending upon the nature of the student’s work.

Advanced courses

ENGLIT 1900 Project Seminar
ENGLIT 1910 Senior Seminar

Grade requirements: A GPA of 2.0 in departmental courses is required for graduation.

Satisfactory/No Credit option: There is no limit on the number of courses in the major that can be taken on an S/NC basis.

Writing (W) requirement: English literature majors automatically fulfill both of the Dietrich School W-course requirements. Students pursuing a second major would be required to complete an additional W course for that major.

Related area: A minimum of 12 credits is required in any one Dietrich department chosen in consultation with the major advisor. The completion of an official Dietrich School minor or a Dietrich School or UCIS certificate also satisfies this requirement.

Honors major requirements: Honors is conferred upon those graduates who maintain a minimum GPA of 3.25, with a GPA of 3.5 or higher in English department courses, based on all departmental courses taken.

Senior Honors Thesis: This option is available to students who maintain a minimum GPA of 3.75 or higher in English department courses, based on all departmental courses taken. Students should consult their professor or advisor about this option.

Internships are strongly encouraged and can fulfill both credits and elective coursework for the major.

Undergraduate Teaching Assistantships may also satisfy elective credit for the major. Consult your advisor.
